"I am only one, but I am one. I cannot do everything, but I can do something. And I will not let what I cannot do interfere with what I can do." —Edward Everett Hale

February 2019

Dear Friends and Supporters of Lyngblomsten,

Difference Maker. Perhaps that is one of the most important titles on earth. And when we take one difference maker, and join that person with another difference maker, with another, and another ... lives are changed. At Lyngblomsten, we see YOU—making a difference.

We see you caring about your community as a whole. We see you caring about individual older adults. We see you sharing the gifts of time, talent, and treasure that God has entrusted to you for your good stewardship. We see you making a powerful difference. One hour at a time. One dollar at a time. One person at a time.

Together, in the past year 1,043* volunteers gave 33,379 hours of service. Together, 682 donors gifted or pledged $506,995. Though we will likely never know all the people who have been touched by your generosity, we do know that in the past year alone, hundreds and hundreds of people are better off because of you.

We invite you to read the stories inside this report that exemplify just a few of today's Difference Makers. Then peruse the pages filled with the names of individuals and organizations who have provided support over the past year. If you are one of them, thank you! If you aren't, we invite you to step into the mission of Lyngblomsten and be a difference maker with us. What we can do together multiplies the impact of our individual contributions. With the growing number of elderly people, you are needed now more than ever before.

Each one of us is only one. And we indeed can each do something that when joined together with others makes a powerful difference. We celebrate and give thanks for each and every supporter and each and every gift.

With sincere admiration and appreciation,

Jeffrey Heinecke
President & CEO

Patricia Montgomery
VP of Communications & Stewardship

Our Mission: Influenced by Christ, Lyngblomsten provides a ministry of compassionate care and innovative services to older adults in order to preserve and enhance their quality of life.

Giving beyond a lifetime

◀ Carol Baker

Helping others has been a lifetime passion for Carol Baker. The daughter of a Lutheran pastor, she grew up watching her parents lead by example with their volunteerism and service.

“I always say to people, I was born a volunteer,” Baker said.

Twenty years ago, her love of giving back brought her to Lyngblomsten, where she served as Director of Volunteer Services and Spiritual Care before retiring several years later. Baker is still a familiar sight around campus, wearing her volunteer badge with pride and transporting residents to physical therapy and occupational therapy or leading a women’s discussion group at The Heritage at Lyngblomsten.

Though she’s given many hours to Lyngblomsten—notching more than 2,300 volunteer hours total—Baker also supports the organization with financial contributions.

A dedicated donor for the past 20 years, she hopes to continue making an impact after her death. Baker has designated giving to the Lyngblomsten Foundation in her personal will.

“It feels like an ongoing legacy because I’ve been giving monthly all these years, so it just felt appropriate to have it continue,” she said.

Individuals like Baker who name Lyngblomsten as a beneficiary in their estate or in an insurance policy, or who establish a charitable gift annuity with Lyngblomsten, become members of the Heritage Society (see page 9).

If donors wish, they can designate how their contributions are used by Lyngblomsten. Some of the options include 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten life enrichment centers, lifelong learning and the arts, spiritual care, and the general fund. Baker chooses to support the Connecting Generations Youth Scholarship Program, which awards scholarships to high school seniors who have volunteered at Lyngblomsten and plan to further their education (see page 22).

“I am so committed—first of all to volunteering—but to honoring gifts and skills that youth volunteers bring,” Baker said. “We have amazing youth, and to be able to give them recognition is wonderful.”

“It feels like an ongoing legacy because I’ve been giving monthly all these years, so it just felt appropriate to have it continue.”

—Carol Baker

Across the Lyngblomsten campus, youth volunteers can be seen making a difference, whether it’s helping with activities like bingo or just stopping to visit with an older adult. The power of that service is not only experienced by older adults but also has a lifelong impact on the youth themselves, according to Baker.

“A lot of these kids may have one grandparent or they may have no grandparents around,” she said. “It’s an opportunity for them to experience elders in more than just a frustrating way—in what you can’t do. When they come to Lyngblomsten, it’s about what you can do.”

Knowing that her giving bolsters youth volunteers engaging with older adults and helps them reach new heights in their educational paths brings Baker great joy and inspires her continued support for Lyngblomsten.

For information about making a planned gift to Lyngblomsten, see page 23.

Trupti Storlie ▶

When Trupti Storlie's mother-in-law Jan was diagnosed with dementia, the steps of the family's memory loss journey brought them to The Gathering group respite program in 2013.

Offered through 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten, this program, which provides a day of brain-stimulating activities for participants and a break for their caregivers, became a light in the Storlies' lives.

"She was always happier coming out of it," Storlie recalled about her mother-in-law's participation each day with The Gathering. "She always had a smile on her face and that was very meaningful for us at that time."

It was the family's first exposure to Lyngblomsten and the quality services it provides to older adults. Three years later, when a fellow congregational member at Roseville Lutheran Church (a Lyngblomsten corporate congregation) asked Storlie to consider serving on the Lyngblomsten Board of Directors, it didn't take much convincing for her to say yes.

Now in her third year as a board director and first as board chair, Storlie has seen a number of initiatives and projects launch during her tenure. These include the rollout of 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten life enrichment centers and the start of a multi-year renovation project focused on the Lyngblomsten Care Center.

"What makes Lyngblomsten different from other senior care organizations is I really think there's an ability here to try new things and to really be innovative and search for what is best for our people," she said.

As a board director, Storlie and her cohorts are tasked with looking toward the future, helping set priorities, and giving direction for Lyngblomsten. It's a type of service that Storlie says fits her well as a longtime information technology implementation consultant and allows her to make a behind-the-scenes impact at the organization.

In addition to giving time, Storlie also supports Lyngblomsten through donations. Both types of support are important and allow the organization to fulfill its mission.

"People (older adults) do have to pay for care, but those funds are the minimum. That's where I think donors and volunteers really bring quality of life to our residents and the people we support in the community."

—Trupti Storlie

"It can be confusing because people do have to pay for care, but those funds are the minimum," Storlie said. "That's where I think donors and volunteers really bring quality of life to our residents and the people we support in the community. That's what takes it from living and getting by to living fully."

This includes offering high quality care and resources to older adults and their families to help them navigate life transitions.

It's an experience Storlie knows well. She watched as her mother-in-law went from living independently to moving in with her and her husband Erik to living in a facility that could provide the care she required.

"I think that experience really highlighted to me the breadth of choices for all the decisions that have to be made and how vulnerable older adults can be in that process," Storlie said. "Making sure that there are organizations that older adults can go to and feel confident is really important."

Growing and giving as a team

◀ Corporate volunteer group from Crystal D

Many companies have annual goals, but Crystal D has one that sets it apart from other small businesses.

Starting in 2016 and continuing every year since, the company has set a goal of reaching 1,000 hours of volunteering accumulated by its employees. Community outreach is a priority to Crystal D President Chuck Dahlgren, who couldn't be more thankful for the community's support of his business over the past 25 years.

"In a small business, you don't have as many luxuries as large businesses do," he said. "You have to take care of customers and take care of employees, and now we've reached a point in our company where we can give back. It's part of life here at Crystal D. It's an important element."

Headquartered in St. Paul, Crystal D produces awards, plaques, and trophies. For the past 15 years, the company has participated in charity events such as packing meals for Feed My Starving Children. As part of a strengthened effort to give back, the company sought out further corporate volunteer opportunities three years ago and connected with Lyngblomsten, which provides a variety of opportunities for corporate volunteers.

In 2018 alone, Crystal D employees shared several experiences with Lyngblomsten residents and tenants. They took them to the Back to the 50's Car Show, Minnesota State Fair, and Como Zoo. Volunteers also made an impact on campus, hosting an ice cream social, playing bingo, and helping spread the holiday spirit by decorating trees and making crafts.

This type of service allows volunteers to engage directly with the people they're serving and see the impact they're making firsthand.

"There's just something about coming face to face with a person. You get to show them love through words and actions," said Amy Felton, Executive Assistant at Crystal D. "That makes what you're spending your time doing meaningful."

Those memories are cherished by volunteers such as Cathy Klein, Controller for Crystal D. She's enjoyed spending time engaging with older adults at Lyngblomsten, treasuring the moments when they open up in conversation or find happiness in activities involving volunteers.

"We've reached a point in our company where we can give back. It's part of life here at Crystal D. It's an important element."

—Chuck Dahlgren

"I never knew my grandparents, so it's a joy to go there and hear people's stories and connect with them," she said. "I'm excited to hear their stories, and they're excited to talk about it, so it works out really well."

Lyngblomsten has long recognized the power of people serving one another, and its corporate volunteer program allows businesses to foster a more personal link to the community and make a difference.

For Dahlgren, the experience of volunteering either as a corporate group or as an individual is something everyone should try, and he's happy he can provide an opportunity to do so through his company.

"A lot of people have never volunteered in their life or been exposed to volunteering...while others grew up with it," he said. "I'm a real believer in unconditional giving, and that's what volunteering is—it's just unconditional giving of your time and energy."

Youth delivering impact

The Calzadillas ▶

Lindsay Calzadillas can remember riding her bike as a high school student to her volunteering shifts at Lyngblomsten, where she delivered mail to care center residents in the 1990s.

Returning to Lyngblomsten as an adult volunteer in 2017, Lindsay picked up her care center mail route once again in the fall. The reprisal of her volunteering role came after her eldest son Manny, 12, expressed interest in volunteering at Lyngblomsten.

“I had never volunteered at an important place before, so I thought it would be a good experience,” he said.

Since becoming a volunteer, Manny has helped out with fun activities for Lyngblomsten tenants that include beanbag tosses and playing games on a video game console.

Since Lindsay and Manny attended a volunteer orientation two years ago, volunteering has become a family activity for the Calzadillas. On some Friday afternoons, Lindsay and her two youngest children, Gabe, 11, and Ari, 9, can be seen navigating a mail cart through care center hallways.

“I always really liked that so I thought they would, too,” Lindsay said.

During their weekly mail rounds, Lindsay sorts parcels by floor and neighborhood while her kids take turns delivering them to residents. Smiles, thank yous, and conversations often follow the family’s mail visits.

“I know they realize that such a small thing makes a difference,” Lindsay said of her kids. “Even if we’re only here an hour, somebody who maybe wouldn’t have gotten a visitor all day is grateful to see them, and that makes them feel really good.”

That feeling of doing something good for another person is an experience all three kids say is their favorite part of volunteering.

“You meet new people and make other people happy when you come to volunteer,” Ari said. “It makes you feel like you did something great in the world.”

In addition to delivering mail, the family also volunteered at the Lyngblomsten Mid-Summer Festival in 2017 and 2018. More than 1,000 people attend the festival each year, which features games, musical and theatre performances, art activities, and food. The event also holds many opportunities for volunteers. Lindsay and her family escorted residents from their rooms to the festivities, meeting many new faces along the way.

“I know (my children) realize that such a small thing makes a difference. Even if we’re only here an hour, somebody who maybe wouldn’t have gotten a visitor all day is grateful to see them, and that makes them feel really good.”

—Lindsay Calzadillas

The Calzadillas family is part of a group of more than 600 active registered volunteers who help Lyngblomsten fulfill its mission of enhancing and enriching the lives of older adults. The family encourages people of any age—but especially youth—to get involved and volunteer.

“You can feel nice about doing something good for other people,” Gabe said.

If you’re a family, an individual, or a group that’s looking for opportunities to volunteer and make an impact in the lives of older adults, see page 23.

Supporting adults aging well in the community

◀ Chuck and Jean Norton

Chuck and Jean Norton have answered the call to serve older adults throughout their lives. As Lyngblomsten volunteers and donors, they've seen the importance of the work the organization does not only on its campus but also in the community.

"We've got massive numbers of people who are growing old—including ourselves—and they have needs whether they realize it or not," Chuck said. "And so do their family and caregivers. It's important to provide the services that we know they need and will benefit from."

Chuck has witnessed firsthand the impact service can make in the lives of older adults through his involvement in Lyngblomsten's former Care Team Ministry program for churches. Care ministries allow volunteers to serve older members of their congregations by helping them with housework, transporting them to appointments, and providing other forms of assistance.

While leading his congregation's care ministry team in the late 2000s, Chuck was approached by Lyngblomsten staff about becoming more involved and taking a place on the organization's corporate board of directors. It's an offer that has culminated in eight years on the Lyngblomsten Board—two of which he served as chair—and four years on the Lyngblomsten Foundation Board of Directors.

During that time, he and Jean have watched Lyngblomsten Community Services evolve and expand, including its launch of 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten life enrichment centers in 2016. The centers open up Lyngblomsten's high-quality programming and services to community members, inviting them to participate in offerings that care for their minds, bodies, and spirits.

With experience facilitating activities in senior living, Jean has seen the positive impact that programs for older adults, such as those provided by 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten, can make.

"Those enrichment offerings make life much more enjoyable for seniors," she said.

The community programs and services offered through 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten wouldn't be possible without the support of many individuals. As the need for community services grows alongside aging populations, the role of these supporters will be more important than ever.

"It's one of the more rewarding experiences you can have," Chuck said of his involvement with Lyngblomsten. "You get a much better feel for the organization, and you see actual results and how they affect people and their families—and how truly important that is. And how much more important that will be in the future with more and more seniors growing into that category."

While the Nortons consider the gift of time as the most valuable form of support they provide to Lyngblomsten, they also make a difference through financial contributions. They participate in fundraisers, such as the Lyngblomsten Foundation's annual Spring Gala, and donate to support initiatives, such as the current capital campaign raising money for a renovation of the Lyngblomsten Care Center. Their generous giving has earned them the distinction of being President's Club members (see page 9 for more information).

"It's been a very positive experience," Chuck said. "We wouldn't continue giving our time, much less our money, to an organization that didn't deserve it. Lyngblomsten needs to grow and become a greater force in people's lives."

Fergstad Award Recipient

Given periodically, the Fergstad Award recognizes outstanding individuals who have made a substantial impact on Lyngblomsten through giving generously of both their time and treasure.

The Anna Quale Fergstad Award for Distinguished Service recognizes those who have made a substantial impact on Lyngblomsten through giving generously of both their time and treasure in addition to service through their church and other community organizations. In 2018, the award was given to James (Jim) Nash, a longtime Lyngblomsten volunteer and supporter.

Jim's journey of impact through Lyngblomsten spans two decades. Since 2001, Jim has served more than 7,100 hours as a registered Lyngblomsten volunteer. Additionally he has given countless hours of service to older adults living in the community through Care Team Ministry and The Gathering through St. Timothy Lutheran Church. His involvement with The Gathering was inspired by serving as his mother's primary caregiver. Now, two decades later, Jim serves two times a month at The Gathering site at Centennial United Methodist Church.

Jim's face is a familiar one around the Lyngblomsten campus. Several times a month, he can be spotted behind the till at Anna's cafe and gift shop. It's a post he's held since first becoming a volunteer. In the past, Jim also has served as a bus driver and captured photographs of many Lyngblomsten events.

In addition to supporting Lyngblomsten's mission by giving his time, Jim also makes generous financial gifts and is a member of the President's Club.

His dedicated service to the community extends beyond Lyngblomsten. Jim volunteers with Meals on Wheels and Loaves & Fishes through St. Timothy Lutheran. Additionally, he shares his photography and web technology skills with Bethel Lutheran Church and the Upper Midwest Regional Metropolitan Opera Auditions.

Our Apologies

Accurate donor and volunteer recognition is important. We sincerely apologize if we have incorrectly listed or omitted your name in any recognition category. If an error has occurred, please let us know by contacting Patricia Montgomery at (651) 632-5322 or pmontgomery@lyngblomsten.org. Thank you!

Get Involved:

Be a Difference Maker in the Lives of Older Adults

Share the Mission of Lyngblomsten with Others

Learn how you can be a difference maker by attending an Age Boldly with Lyngblomsten presentation. In less than 60 minutes, you'll hear the story of our 2nd Half with Lyngblomsten life enrichment centers and discover how you can support them. Let us bring a presentation to you and your group, including your family and friends, workplace, civic or community organization, or faith community.

Share Your Financial Resources

Every gift makes a difference as we work together to ensure that older adults and their families have the services and support they need. You can:

- Make a one-time or sustaining monthly gift to the Lyngblomsten Foundation
- Honor a special person by making a memorial or tribute gift
- Give a gift of stock or securities
- Give a gift through your workplace or employer matching funds

Participate in a Fundraising Event or Campaign

Join us in 2019 for the Lyngblomsten Foundation Spring Gala on Friday, April 26, or for the Age Boldly with Lyngblomsten Luncheon in the fall. Give a gift to the Our Turn in History Capital Campaign to support the care center major renovation, or make a year-end gift through the Lights for Lyngblomsten appeal for the General Fund.

Create a Legacy through an Estate or Planned Gift

You can designate the Lyngblomsten Foundation as a beneficiary of your will, trust, retirement plan, or life insurance policy. Many such planned gifts can offer significant tax savings, and some arrangements, such as charitable gift annuities, can offer you more income in your retirement years while also leaving a legacy gift that will help future generations of older adults.

Share Your Time & Talents

Enrich the lives of older adults through more than 100 types of volunteer opportunities that fit your talents, interests, and schedule. One-time and ongoing volunteer opportunities are available for families, groups, and individuals of all ages.

Engage Your Business

Let us serve as a resource to your business as you seek to be engaged in the community. Individuals and groups from your organization can help to enhance the lives of older adults through volunteering, donating, or sponsoring.

Make a Difference

Three ways you can get involved with Lyngblomsten and make an impact in the lives of older adults. ►

DONATE Support through annual giving opportunities, special fundraisers, legacy and memorial gifts, planned giving, and more.

VOLUNTEER Find an opportunity that fits your skills, desires, and schedule—for you, your family, or your corporate group.

SPONSOR Give back to the community and increase your organization's brand awareness by sponsoring one of our annual events or a custom-built opportunity.
